The Institute for Oral History assumes responsibility to train Faculty Research Fellows in oral history methods and principles, provide recording equipment, and process recordings and transcripts of the interviews. All interviews conducted by Faculty Research Fellows become the intellectual property of Baylor University and are governed by the Institute for Oral History Interview Agreement Forms approved by Baylor's Committee on the Protection of Human Subjects in Research. Both interviewers and interviewees are invited to review the transcripts. Upon completion, interview transcripts are made available through Baylor's digital resources library. Please note that transcribing in the Institute is done in chronological order, and a transcribing backlog of several months can be expected. While we welcome proposals for interviews in languages other than English, we cannot guarantee transcription in all instances.
